Bloomsbury Branch Manager

Experience

After years in the property industry, I've built my career around understanding every stage of the lettings process. I started out as a negotiator, gaining hands-on experience valuing and marketing properties, conducting viewings, and negotiating the best outcomes for my clients. This foundation has given me a detailed understanding of the Central London market and what it takes to successfully sell or let a property.

Having been part of the Greater London Properties team for several years, I'm now proud to lead our Bloomsbury office as Branch Manager. My experience working directly with buyers, sellers, landlords, and tenants means I understand the full journey a property takes – from first valuation through to completion or move-in.

Why am I good at my job

My background as a negotiator allows me to approach every property with a strategic and detail-focused mindset. I understand what buyers and tenants are looking for and how to position a property to achieve the best possible result. Strong negotiation, clear communication, and honest advice are central to how I work with my clients.

I really enjoy the role because no two days are ever the same. Whether I'm helping a client achieve the best price for their property, finding the right tenant, or guiding someone through an important move, it's incredibly rewarding to play a part in such significant moments.

“Marcus was fantastic from the outset. He was open and honest about the complexities of the current regulations, which gave us great confidence in instructing him to let and manage our family home in Central London. It was important to us that the property was let to a tenant who would truly look after it, and Marcus understood exactly what we wanted. The process was smooth and stress-free, and having a consistent property manager has been a real benefit. The longevity of staff at Greater London Properties is a real strength, and I would happily recommend Marcus and his Central London team.”
